TOWN OF COLLIERVILLE HONORS FORMER COMMISSIONER DAVID BRADFORD WITH MAYORAL PROCLAMATION

Staff Reports

COLLIERVILLE, Tenn. — The Town of Collierville officially declared Monday, Sept. 14, 2026, as “David Bradford Day” in recognition of former Shelby County Commissioner David Bradford and his years of public service.

Bradford served eight years as the county commissioner representing Collierville and was recognized for his commitment to the community and contributions to Shelby County residents.

During his tenure, Bradford played an instrumental role in helping the Collierville Citizens Police Association secure numerous grants to support its efforts and initiatives.

The proclamation, issued by the mayor, honors Bradford for his dedicated public service and his commitment to improving the community.

“The Town of Collierville extends its appreciation to David Bradford for his many years of service and dedication to our community,” the town said in announcing the proclamation.

Community members expressed their gratitude to Bradford for his service and wished him success in his next chapter.

COLLIERVILLE RANKS AMONG TENNESSEE'S SAFEST COMMUNITIES, REPORT SAYS

COLLIERVILLE, Tenn. — Collierville ranked as the fifth-safest municipality in Tennessee in 2025 among communities with populations of more than 40,000, according to a newly released report from the Tennessee Bureau of Investigation.

The TBI's annual Crime in Tennessee 2025 report shows Collierville's Group A crime rate was about 43% below the statewide average.

Group A offenses, tracked through Tennessee's incident-based reporting system, include crimes against people, property and society, including assaults, burglaries, thefts, vehicle thefts, fraud, drug violations and weapons offenses.

Collierville recorded its lowest number of reported crimes since 2004 in 2025, according to the report. The city also has experienced a steady decline in reported crime since 2020.

Preliminary data for 2026 indicate the downward trend may continue, with Collierville on pace to record fewer reported offenses than it did in 2025.

“These numbers reflect the daily dedication of our officers, dispatchers, detectives, jailers, and professional staff,” Collierville Police Chief Dale Lane said. “They also show the tremendous impact of Collierville’s engaged and supportive community. Keeping Collierville safe is truly a team effort, and we are grateful for everyone who plays a part.”

The Collierville Police Department said it will continue to emphasize proactive policing, community partnerships and ongoing improvements as part of its efforts to maintain public safety.

The department said those efforts are intended to help keep Collierville a safe and welcoming community for residents, workers and visitors.

Nine Collierville students named National Merit semifinalists

Eight at Collierville High School, one at St. George's, among more than 16,000 named nationwide

Nine Collierville students have been named semifinalists in the 2027 National Merit Scholarship Program, the National Merit Scholarship Corporation announced Wednesday.

Eight attend Collierville High School: Sanvi V. Acharya, Noah J. Benson, Vaibhav Krishnamurthi, Ella Liu, Advait N. Mahale, Charith Nimmagadda, Janani Prakash and Joshua A. Rambiya.

Yana S. Patel of St. George's Independent School was also named a semifinalist.

They are among more than 16,000 semifinalists nationwide in the 72nd annual program. Semifinalists represent less than 1 percent of the nation's high school seniors, and the number named in each state is proportional to that state's share of the national total of graduating seniors.

More than 1.2 million juniors at about 20,000 high schools entered the 2027 competition by taking the 2025 Preliminary SAT/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test.

To advance to finalist standing, a semifinalist and a school official must submit a detailed scholarship application covering the student's academic record, school and community activities, leadership, employment, and honors received. The student must also have an outstanding academic record, be endorsed and recommended by a school official, write an essay, and earn SAT or ACT scores confirming the earlier qualifying test performance.

About 95 percent of semifinalists are expected to reach the finalist level, and those students will be notified in February. Roughly half of the finalists will go on to win a National Merit Scholarship.

About 6,700 scholarships worth some $24 million will be offered next spring in three categories: 2,500 National Merit $2500 Scholarships awarded on a state-representational basis, about 700 corporate-sponsored awards, and about 3,500 college-sponsored awards financed by roughly 140 colleges and universities.

Winners will be announced in four national releases beginning in April and concluding in July.

The National Merit Scholarship Corporation, a not-for-profit organization that operates without government assistance, was established in 1955 to conduct the program.

EARLY SEASON RANKINGS

Does anyone really understand the college football ranking system?

As a Tennessee fan, I am perennially frustrated by the preseason rankings. Of course, I also believe Tennessee is better than whatever number happens to be beside its name, so take my objectivity for what it's worth.

But preseason rankings really are educated guesses.

The Associated Press poll is compiled from ballots submitted by sportswriters and broadcasters around the country. Before anybody has played a game, those voters are ranking teams based on returning players, recruiting, transfers, coaching and—whether anyone wants to admit it or not—a healthy dose of reputation.

Then the games start and reality begins interfering with the predictions.

Oregon opened this season ranked No. 2 in the country. In its first game, the Ducks barely escaped Boise State, 34-27. Voters appropriately dropped them to No. 6.

Then Saturday, unranked Oklahoma State beat Oregon 39-31.

Oregon plummeted to No. 21. Oklahoma State? Still not ranked, although they are now receiving votes.

Ohio State entered the weekend No. 1 and led Texas by 20 points entering the fourth quarter before losing 24-23. The Buckeyes fell to No. 6, while Texas jumped from No. 4 all the way to No. 1.

Michigan is another good example. The Wolverines started No. 16, needed a controversial extra second and a Hail Mary to beat Western Michigan in Week 1, and were promptly thrown out of the Top 25. Then they beat No. 11 Oklahoma and suddenly Michigan is back at No. 19.

Maybe the voters know something. Maybe they don't.

Meanwhile, Tennessee started the year at No. 20. After taking care of Furman, the Vols moved to No. 18. Saturday night they went on the road and beat Georgia Tech convincingly, 45-24, rushing for 299 yards in the process.

Their reward was a move to No. 15.

I'll take it, I suppose.

The truth is that rankings become more meaningful as the season progresses. In September, we are still trying to figure out who is actually good and who simply looked good on paper in August.

And that is part of what makes college football so much fun.

Eventually, you have to stop debating résumés and recruiting classes and line up across from somebody.

Then we find out.

As for Tennessee, I'll admit my bias.

I think the Vols are better than No. 15.

Give them a few more Saturdays to prove me right—or wrong.

WELCOME

COLLIERVILLE POLICE DEPARTMENT WELCOMES NEW K9 TEAM

COLLIERVILLE, Tenn. — The Collierville Police Department welcomed a new K9 team after Officer Brooks and K9 Loki graduated from the Shelby County Sheriff's Office K9 School.

CPD credited Sgt. Brenner and Deputy Javins of the Shelby County Sheriff's Office, along with Deputy Director Bowen of the West Tennessee Drug Task Force, for sharing their training, knowledge and expertise throughout the program.

The department also thanked the Community

Foundation of Greater Memphis for its support in helping make the training opportunity possible.

CPD said it looks forward to having Officer Brooks and Loki serve the Collierville community.

TENNESSEE SHAKESPEARE COMPANY TO PRESENT
‘LOVE’S LABOR’S LOST’ IN COLLIERVILLE

COLLIERVILLE, Tenn. — The Tennessee Shakespeare Company will present “Love’s Labor’s Lost” Sept. 26 as part of its 10th annual free Shout-Out Shakespeare Series.

The performance will begin at 7 p.m. on the Depot platform at Town Square, 125 N. Rowlett St.

The Shakespeare comedy follows the king of Navarre and his friends as they establish an academy and vow to avoid women for three years. Their plans are disrupted when the Princess of France and her companions arrive.

The 90-minute adaptation features actors portraying multiple roles and uses staging techniques inspired by the traveling Shakespeare companies of the period.

Admission is free, and no tickets are required. Attendees are encouraged to bring lawn chairs, blankets and picnic items.

The event will be held outdoors at the Depot Visitors Center.

For more information, residents can contact Victoria McDaniel, Collierville’s cultural arts coordinator.

A NIGHT OF OPERA
COMING SEPTEMBER 29

COLLIERVILLE, Tenn. — On a September evening in downtown Collierville, the historic Morton Museum will trade its usual quiet for the soaring voices of Opera Memphis.

The museum will host “Opera’s Greatest Hits” on Tuesday, Sept. 29, as part of Opera Memphis’ annual 30 Days of Opera initiative. The free performance will feature professional vocalists performing beloved arias and timeless classics.

For 15 years, Opera Memphis has spent a month bringing free, accessible performances to communities throughout Memphis and Shelby County. The initiative is rooted in the idea that music can connect people and open the door to new experiences.

The Morton Museum, a sponsor of the program, will bring that mission to Collierville with an evening designed for both longtime opera fans and those experiencing the art form for the first time.

The concert begins at 6:30 p.m., with doors opening at 6 p.m., at the museum, 196 N. Main St. Seating is limited to 80 guests, and registration is required, although admission is free.

Residents can register through the Town of Collierville’s online registration form: <https://www.collierville.tn.gov/Home/Components/FormBuilder/FormBuilder/9cb2230f-3882416ca5d5f46b971b629d/>

For one evening, some of opera’s greatest music will have a distinctly Collierville setting — bringing the power of live performance right to the community.

COLLIERVILLE POLICE DEPARTMENT
WELCOMES RETURNING OFFICER,
RECOGNIZES 15 YEARS OF SERVICE

COLLIERVILLE, Tenn. — The Collierville Police Department recently welcomed back Officer Lambert Chatman, (pictured above, center), who has returned to the department where his law enforcement career began.

Chatman served as a CPD patrol officer from 1993 to 1995 before joining the Memphis Police Department. He spent the next 27 years with MPD, retiring as a lieutenant. During one of his final assignments, Chatman served on the MPD Color Guard.

Assistant Chief David Townsend remembers working with Chatman during Townsend’s field training after joining CPD in 1995.

“Lambert was a good officer who took the time to help a young officer learn the job,” Townsend said. “It’s great to have him back at CPD after all these years.”

Chatman returned to CPD on Aug. 31 as a part-time court officer.

The department also recently recognized Lt. Lucas Felton, (pictured at left), for 15 years of service to CPD. Felton serves as the Community Services supervisor and is a member of the department’s SWAT team.

CPD commended Felton for his leadership, professionalism and continued commitment to the Collierville community.

LESSONS FROM

THE COACHING CHAIR:

Faith That Moves

One of the things I appreciate about the book of James is that he does not leave much room for vague Christianity. James gets right to the point. In James 2:17, he writes, “Faith by itself, if it does not have works, is dead.”

That is a strong statement, and I think it is supposed to be.

James is not saying that we earn our salvation by doing good things. He is saying that genuine faith eventually shows up in the way we live. If we really believe something, at some point it should affect what we do.

I see a version of that from the coaching chair. Most people who come to me already know many of the things they ought to be doing financially. They know they need to save. They know the credit card balance needs to come down. They know they are spending too much somewhere. Often, the problem is not a lack of knowledge.

The problem is getting from “I know” to “I did.”

That is one of the places where coaching can help. Sitting down with another person forces us to stop speaking in generalities. “I need to save more” becomes, “I am going to transfer $200 into savings on payday.” “We need to get out of debt” becomes a written plan for which debt gets attacked first. The idea turns into a decision, and the decision gets a next step.

A good coach cannot do the work for you. But sometimes having someone ask the right questions, help you make the plan, and then ask later whether you actually did it is exactly what moves us from good intentions to action.

James makes much the same point about faith. He gives the example of seeing someone who needs food or clothing and simply wishing that person well. James essentially asks: What good did that do? If I truly care about the person standing in front of me, eventually that concern should lead me to do something.

That can be uncomfortable because talking is easy. Action usually costs us something—money, time, convenience, pride, or maybe the willingness to have a difficult conversation.

I have become convinced that much of life happens in that small space between knowing what is right and actually doing it.

Faith lives there too.

We can talk about trusting God, generosity, forgiveness and loving our neighbor. But James reminds us that these things were never intended to remain ideas.

The question is not simply, “What do I believe?” Sometimes the better question is, “Because I believe it, what am I going to do about it?”

That is where faith begins to move.
